

About Trillium Tribune

As we continue to evolve with the times, our mission remains unchanged: to inform, inspire, and connect our community through the power of the truth. Community and family comes first and we will preserve it. "Truth from the hills, to the people"

The Trillium Tribune

CHRONICLING THE PAST, PRESENT, AND FUTURE

ESTABLISHED IN 1890

Cornerstone of truth and community. With a rich history rooted in integrity and excellence, our newspaper is dedicated to providing comprehensive coverage of local events, defending the working force, and preserving our traditions.

Mysterious Lights and Dam Delays

Mysterious Lights Return Amid Growing Unease

The unsettling glow that haunted the ridges of Old Mill Hollow last week has returned, with more townsfolk reporting eerie green lights flickering in the night. This latest disturbance coincides with an announcement from Langley Coal and Navigation Company (LC&NC), delaying their highly anticipated dam construction—a decision that has stirred both frustration and fear among locals.

LC&NC cites "unexpected geological instability" as the reason for halting operations, though workers whisper of stranger occurrences at the construction site. Some claim to have seen shadows moving where there should be none.

Others speak of deep, unnatural groans from beneath the ground, as though the land and river itself were protesting their efforts. "The hills don't take kindly to being rearranged," muttered Old Tom Abernathy, a retired miner who remembers the Hollow Mine Disaster of '19 all too well. "LC&NC can call it what they want, but folks 'round here know better."

This setback for LC&NC has renewed talk of longstanding local legends—that the land beneath Trillium holds forces older than memory, and that disturbing its veins might invite consequences beyond any engineer's calculations.

Sheriff Montgomery maintains that these events are unrelated and urges townsfolk not to spread unnecessary fear. However, the growing number of workers quitting the project tells a different story. Even among those who remain, an unspoken dread lingers, a quiet warning from the hills themselves.

As Trillium waits for LC&NC's next move, the Tribune will continue to follow this story. Residents are advised to stay indoors after dark and heed the warnings of those who understand what lies beneath the surface.

UNDERDOG BASEBALL TEAM TRIUMPHS

THE TIPTON TIGERS CELEBRATE THEIR VICTORY OVER THE WITHERTON EAGLES, LED BY GEORGE "SLUGGER" MARTIN'S

Tipton Tigers celebrate their victory over the Witherton Eagles.

In a game that will be remembered for years to come, the Tipton Tigers clinched a dramatic victory against the Witherton Eagles yesterday, with a final score of 5-4. The thrilling match took place at the town's main stadium, drawing a record number of spectators who were treated to an unforgettable display of skill, perseverance, and sportsmanship. The game was a nail-biter from the start, with both teams showcasing their best talents.

The hero of the day was undoubtedly George "Slugger" Martin, whose powerful batting and unyielding determination proved decisive. With two outs and a runner on base, Martin stepped up to the plate and delivered a phenomenal home run that sent the crowd into a frenzy. His decisive hit not only secured the victory for the Tigers but also cemented his status as a local legend.

Talk of the Town

"You can feel it in the air, like a storm rolling in. Some nights, the lights dance along the ridge like they got a mind of their own. Folks best be staying indoors after sundown, mark my words."

-Adeline Carter, Owner of Carter's General Store

"I ain't here to entertain ghost stories. The mining company says it's a delay, and that's all there is to it. Anyone spreading wild rumors is just making trouble where there don't need to be any."

-Sheriff Montgomery

"This town ain't just another line item on LC&NC's ledger, they've been ignoring the warnings of those who know this land best. We've seen this before, and history don't favor those who ignore it."

-Mayor Elias Hargrove